Teachers with a passion for languages

My first two years in Sweden, I studied Swedish for immigrants. I am very interested in language so it was a fun challenge. Meanwhile I was fascinated by how it could be so easy for some to learn while others straggled same vocabulary week in and week out without make much progress. So I applied myself to the university to immerse myself in pedagogy mystery.

I am 47 years old and came to Sweden from Iran 17 years ago. Since five years back, I work as a high school teacher part time. I like it very much good with my job but now that my youngest child started school wants I work more. Therefore, I seek part-time post of Swedish teachers Taught School.

Together with my wife and my three children, I live in a townhouse in Green Farm. On weekends we go often to the country place where we relax, fish and walk in the woods.

As a person I am analytical and pragmatic. I stimulated by seeing my students grow and develop. To see how a student formulates a report, short story or a speech for the first time captivates me. the language is a key to so much in life.

Best Regards
